Guidelines for CASE STUDY PRESENTATION

EMPOWERING High Performance
Technology Teams

What is a “Case Study Presentation”?

A case study presentation will be an in-depth examination of an IT Architecture related subject, implemented architecture idea or an architectural innovation within a real-world context. The goal is to showcase a real-life IT architectural solution. You can present any of your latest publications/patents also!

What we are looking for?

- Show-casing the challenges faced by the industry in architecting at various levels such as Enterprise Architecture, Business Platform Architecture, or Solution Architecture domains.
- Analysing and discussing the challenges and opportunities for various architecture roles in helping Enterprises to transform into a cognitive Enterprise.
- Presenting real-life examples, use cases, and business impacts related to adopting innovative architecture practices.

Your presentation could be anchored on one or more of the following as relevant:

1. What technologies existed in the enterprise and what new technologies adoption needed architecture roadmap?
2. What were the reference architectures used and how it helped in delivering architecture solutions faster?
3. What challenges were faced in collaborating with business and development/operations stakeholders?
4. What were the tools & techniques used for architecture design and communication?
5. What were the measures of success the stakeholders agreed to while quantifying the value of architecture?
6. Describe any unique innovations and best practices that were followed in the process of architecting architecture in the case.
